Brian-

Following up on the voicemail that I left for you on Wednesday, I am wondering whether you or your clients have any interest in revisiting settlement discussions at this time. As you can imagine, the current situation is going to have a devastating impact on the Eber business. Much of the inventory comes from Europe, and deliveries have ground to a trickle. Obviously, with bars and restaurants closed, there is little demand for the product.

The business was in a fairly precarious position before all of this hit, and the future is even more uncertain now.

I have not had a discussion with the Ebers on what they would be willing to do, but assume they would be interested in exploring a resolution so they could focus on everything else.

Give me a call to discuss.

Colin
